CO-OPERATION

IN A. S. OF E

W. R. Pierce, County Organizer.
Makes an Appeal to The Farmers.

WARNS AGAINST LAWLESSNESS

Friends and Farmers of Breckenridge county:—It is a true saying that "procrastination is a thief of time," then I come to you through the papers, begging you with all the earnestness of a true Equity man not to procrastinate any longer while the A. S. of E. is and has accomplished wonders considering a partial organization. Now that Breckenridge county is behind all the rest of the Green river district is traceable direct to inaction.

Having been made your county organizer by the action of the last county union, my first and main aim will be to arouse people to a sense of action, and I feel that any effort I might put forth would prove futile without the co-operation of, at least, some of the good people. Will you cooperate with me to raise the banner of Equity in every nook and corner of our beloved old county? It seems to me that it would not be necessary to beg and plead with as noble a people as ours to do Equity or to join in an organization to demand their just dues. Single handed as the farmers have always gone at their business he is compelled to pay tribute to organization upon every hand. When we buy a self-binder we help to hold up the hands of the miners union and the various labor unions that every piece is compelled to pass through in its construction and every fellow gets a profit which is just and perfectly right in every branch of business. But when the farmer goes to market with any of the products of his labor he finds that he must sell in competition with every other farmer engaged in like business.

Now the case with the farmer of a few years ago, but the farmer of today has learned a lesson from the rest of the business world and has gone to making a price on the product of his labor and is doing wonders in this direction.

Now boys, there are no foes that can assail us from the outside, then be careful and patient, don't get up trouble among yourselves; lay down everything that would tend to divide you in any sense.

I hear some saying they will not sign the pooling pledge, now gentlemen, be careful along this line, that is just what the trusts want to hear you say. They have put out all sorts of false reports for the purpose of confusing you and causing you to do a thing you would long regret after it is too late. Now I know you don't want to kill the goose that laid the golden egg, but if you do, just dump your tobacco and she will surely die.

I hear some complaining about not selling the tobacco and say they will not pool if it isn't sold. Gentlemen, if we were in a battle with a foreign foe and the enemy battle was raging hot and the enemy almost ready to retreat, if we should just, all at once, stop fighting and say to that foe, now look here, if you don't surrender we will; do the think we would win the battle? no, of course not, neither will we win this battle if we surrender first. Then gentlemen keep us at our guns and lead the way with pooling pledges will signed up and the tobacco will sell.

It is a very reasonable conclusion that the pooled tobacco will not sell if they (the trusts) can buy all the tobacco they want on a competitive market. Then for God's sake don't cut your own throats. Yes, the trusts are offering some fancy prices for tobacco but what do they mean and what do they want? Do they want to buy the tobacco or the man? It is not the former, if it was why don't they go to the pooling house and get all they want, that is sweet and nice, then it must be the latter.

Now gentlemen, I want to warn you against lawlessness. We learn that there has been some crimes committed in some sections of the State, but it has not been done under the auspices of the A. S. of E.

We do not think it is necessary to dig up plat beds and burn barns and on the contrary stands for everything that is noble, just and right for a more perfect civilization and a complete enforcement of law and order.

In conclusion I want to again urge the importance of action, if you are sitting regularly in your local, go and call a meeting and call me

WILL REPRESENT

ALL THE PEOPLE.

Col. Johnson Drops Political Sentiments In Opening
His Address.

WAS ENTERTAINED

AT YOUNGER HOME.

As was expected, Col. Ben Johnson, Congressman from the Fourth District arrived here Thursday morning and was busy the entire day receiving friends at the St. George Hotel. This visit will probably be his last to Cloverport for some time, as he leaves for Washington in November.

At six o'clock a beautiful dinner was given in compliment to Col. Johnson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Younger. Plates were laid for six and several delicious courses were served. The speaking took place at Oelze's hall at 7:30 P. M. and Col. Johnson was introduced by Prof. Edmond Wroe. In opening his address Col. Johnson dropped politics for a few minutes and said he would go to Congress not alone for the Democrats but for all the people. He further stated that if he could be of any service to the citizens of Cloverport anyway while he was in Washington he wanted them to be free to inform him. Col. Johnson continued his speech which contained his views of the Republican Platform and his advice to the Democratic supporters. Immediately after the speaking a number from the audience shook hands with Col. Johnson and expressed to him their feelings for his success and welfare.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is good for little burns and big burns, small scratches or bruises and big ones. It is healing and soothing. Good for Piles. Sold by All Druggists.

Breckenridge County Pooling.

State Organizer L. N. Robertson, of the A. S. of E., has returned from his three days' tour of Breckenridge county and he reports good meetings held and also good prospects for pooling a large percentage of the crop around Cloverport.—Owensboro Messenger.

Announcement.

The engagement of Mr. Claude Lain and Miss Marie Hatfield was published in the St. Rose Catholic church Sunday morning. The wedding will take place some time this month, the exact date has not yet been set. Miss Hatfield is a lovely young girl, and her home is at Victoria. Mr. Lain is of Evansville, Ind.

BREAKIG LAW

COSTS MONEY.

Weisenberger, Mullen And Popham Have To Pay Heavy Fines.

In the Circuit Court at Hardinsburg last week, Mike Popham, Geo Mullen and John Weisenberger were fined $500 each, as a result of a compromise for violating the local option law in this city.

Dinner For Mrs. D'Huy.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cordery were host and hostess to a beautiful dinner given Wednesday evening at their home in honor of Mrs. F. N. D'Huy, of Evansville, Ill. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Reese, of Pineville, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lightfoot, Miss Carrie Moore and Mrs. D'Huy.

Robbed In Louisville.

The flat of Mrs. John Allen Murray on Brook Street was entered last week and robbed of several valuable, including a beautiful pearl pin. The jewel was in the shape of a dove and was an exquisite piece of jewelry.

Miss Kate Moorman was also robbed of her pocket book.

If you need help. I would like to have all the secretaries of locals and others who are interested in this noble cause to communicate with me and make your wishes known for I am your willing servant. If you need organizing write me. I know you need organizing, you who are not already organized, now who will be first?

Yours for A. S. of E. success,
W. R. Pierce, County Organizer,
Shreve, Ky.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Will Be Held Next Month—Owensboro Minister to Have Charge.

Rev. James T. Lewis is making plans to hold a series of revival meetings in the Baptist church of which he is pastor.

The services will begin Sunday morning, November 17, and will be conducted by Dr. William D. Nowlin, who will assist Rev. Lewis throughout the meeting. Dr. Nowlin is pastor of the Third Baptist church of Owensboro, and is an eminent divine.

Henry Moorman Shot, Not Killed.

The report received here last week that Henry Moorman was killed in St. Louis was erroneous, and the following special was in the Louisville Times: "Henry Moorman proprietor of the Continental Creamery Company, of St. Louis, who was shot in that city by a revenue officer last Thursday night, has written to C. F. Moorman, his father, in Brandenburg, that he is recovering from his wound. Moorman mistook the officers for burglars and opened fire, which was returned and he received his wound. Moorman says he was arrested and taken to a hospital under guard, which was later withdrawn."

GENEROUS GIFT.

Col. Johnson Gives the Baptist Church a Neat Sum.

Last Thursday evening, after the Democratic speaking in Oelze's Hall, Congressman Ben Johnson held an informal reception and met a number of friends.

Several of Cloverport's handsome women were introduced to him, among them were some diligent workers of the Baptist church. Although Col. Johnson is a Catholic, he acted for a few minutes as though he were a Baptist, and gave Mrs. Thos. Tousey $50 for that church. Col. Johnson is known as one of the most generous men in the State of Kentucky. He has given neat sums to other churches in Breckenridge county.

Announcement.

The engagement of Miss Sarah Adelaide Collis, of Lexington, to Mr. Cleburne Earl Gregory has been announced. The wedding will take place some time in December. Mr. Gregory is a former Lewisport man, and is now business manager of the Henderson Journal.

AS TO THE LAW ON ISSUING TAX WARRANTS.

EDITOR NEWS:

The Attorney General is the chief law officer of the Commonwealth, and as such, it is his duty, upon the application of any executive or ministerial officer of the State, to give all such officers his opinion in writing touching any of the duties of his office. (See section 112 of the Kentucky Statutes.)

Auditor Hager, now the Democratic candidate for Governor, requested the Attorney General, under this statute, to construe section 24, article 8, of the new revenue act. This is that part of the law providing for tax warrants. In response to this request, the Attorney General filed a written opinion in regard to the law concerning tax warrants on December 13, 1906. Here is what he says in regard to the fees the County Clerk and Sheriff may charge:

"So we conclude the Clerk is entitled to a fee of 60 cents for issuing a tax warrant."

"If the Clerk indexes the warrants he is entitled to 10 cents for each name."

"The first clause fixes the fee (of the Sheriff) at 6 per cent. on the first $300 of the warrant and 3 per cent. on the residue."

Under this opinion of the Attorney General the legal fees are not exceeding 70 cents to the Clerk and 14 cents to the Sheriff. In this county the Clerk has been charging $1.50 as his fee and the Sheriff 50 cents as his cost. In other words, they have charged more than twice as much as the Attorney General says is legal. There were more than 2,000 tax warrants issued in Breckenridge county last year by the County Clerk. Figure it out yourselves and see what this iniquitous tax warrant law cost the tax-payers of this county.

THOMAS D. IRELAND DIES SUDDENLY.

Death of A Noble Man Brings
Deep Grief--Was A Soldier
In Time of War.

Skilman, Ky., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—In the death of Thomas D. Ireland, Hancock county has sustained the loss of one of its most influential and noble citizens. His death, which occurred Monday, October 21, was a great shock to every one in his family and this community. Being a man of much push and energy, he worked too hard on Wednesday and was over heated, then cooled off very quickly which gave him a chill and in a very short time had to take his bed. Pneumonia set up and death resulted in less than four days.

Mr. Ireland was born in Galatin, county, near Warsaw, Ky., on the Ohio river, Oct. 21, 1837, making him 70 years of age the day of his death. He spent his early life in the hills of old Galatin, and many were his ups and downs according to the story of his life. When he reached manhood and the long-to-be remembered days of the early Sixties came on, he joined the Southern army under Helm's command in the Third Kentucky Cavalry. He fought bravely for four and a half years until the close of the Civil war.

He was married to Miss Adda Hobbs, of Warsaw, on Sept. 17, 1867. Into this union seven children were born: one of who survive him with his wife, one daughter having died in childhood. The following are the names of those living: Mrs. Curtis Williams, of Evansville, Mrs. Leon McGavock, of Cloverport, Mrs. Rolt, Brown, of Warsaw, Emory H., of Evansville, Benton, who is at home and Hughes, now in school at Lexington.

As a father, husband and neighbor, there was none better or more loved than he and one was never in his company but what he was bettered in some way by it. Words would fail to tell of all his good deeds but the best of all was a christian man of the highest type and eternity alone will reveal it all.

The funeral will take place Wednesday at the M. E. church at Hawesville at 1 P. M., after which the remains will be laid to rest in the Hawesville cemetery on the hill by the Masonic order of which he was a member.

DEATH COMES

TO MRS. MURPHY.

Beloved Woman Succumbs After A Lengthy Illness At Her Home In This City.

Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy, one of Cloverport's best known and loved women sank peacefully into the valley of death Monday night, drawing her last breath at 10 o'clock. Her death had been expected for some time and her children and grand-children were at her bedside when the end came. She had been ill for over two years, suffering from dropsy and heart trouble.

Mrs. Murphy was Miss Elizabeth Wilkerson before her marriage to Allen Murphy, who died eighteen years ago. She was born in Cloverport and had lived here continuously all her life. She was sixty-nine years of age last March.

Mrs. Murphy was a life-long member of the Methodist church, but owing to ill health during the last few years could not take active interest in church work.

Mrs. Murphy is survived by three daughters: Miss Annie Murphy, of Chicago, Mrs. T. M. Watkins, St. Joseph, Mo., and Mrs. E. H. Kingsberry, of Orell, Ky. Mrs. Watkins arrived from St. Joseph Monday to see her mother, and Mrs. Kingsberry came last week, but owing to illness Miss Murphy was not able to get here until last night.

PATESVILLE.

Mrs. E. N. Dean is able to be out again.

Mrs. T. W. Harman was in Louisville several days of last week.

D. G. Hatfield and James Lynch went to Owensboro Saturday.

J. F. Parson and daughter, Muriel, were in Hawesville Friday.

E. O. Gordon, D. S. was in Hawesville Monday last week on business.

Frank Bradshaw, wife and mother were in town Saturday afternoon shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Reids and baby, of Cloverport, are visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Lizzie Clark, of Hawesville, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Dave Clark, of this place.

Misses Ada Frymire and Emma Clark were in Hawesville Friday.

E. O. Gordon, D. S. was in Hawesville Monday last week on business.

Misses Rena and Ola Jarboe spent several days of last week in Tobinsport the guest of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Lynch and little daughter, Helen Lucile, were in Hawesville Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Mark Clark, of Owensboro, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. I. Baker.

Mrs. James Lynch and two children, Helen and Clyde, returned from Owensboro Sunday.

Elias Bradshaw went to St. Lawrence Monday of last week where he is employed at Higdon's saw mill.

Mrs. Katie Barnett, of Rockport, Ind., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lynch several days of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Capt. Colbert and children spent several days of last week at Deansfield, the guest of her mother, Mrs. Brock.

Rev. Bennett, our new M. E. pastor, delivered his first sermon here Sunday morning.

Monroe Marloe and son, Port Marloe, returned from Evansville Monday, where they spent several days the guest of relatives.

Mrs. Rebecca Powers, who has been spending several weeks at Dukes the guest of R. J. Tindle and family and other relatives, returned home Sunday.

G. W. Jarboe was in Cloverport Wednesday on business. Mr. Jarboe is preparing to leave shortly for El Paso, Texas to spend the winter.

Theodore Mattingly, of Kirk, passed through our town Sunday enroute to Knoxville and gave a pleasant call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fawver.

Vernon Lynch left Monday of last week for Hunter, Ark., prospecting. His intentions are that he and his wife shall locate there shortly if prospects are favorable.

The Miracle of the PEARLONIUM.

By INA WRIGHT HANSON.

Copyright, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

We were at the Big Tree grove, little eastern bred Muriel, with pearl-onions at her slender waist, and I, a western writer. We had wandered through the inner grove, where the most mighty monarchs are—the Giant, General Sherman, Jumbo, the Sisters and others. We had revelled at the contrasts between trees 300 feet high and the cream cups and other sweet spring flowers nestling at their feet. Then we had gone through the gates into the outer forest and were sitting at the river's edge at the end of the swinging bridge. The rest of the party stayed away. We were to have this little goodby hour apart.

"The Giant is 95 feet in circumference, 300 feet high and is estimated to be 3,000 years old," chanted Muriel in the words of the guide. "Or was it 5,000? Three thousand or 5,000? Oh, dear! Must I always ponder on this? Can I tell nothing without always referring to my notebook?" she demanded wildly.

I took the notebook from her. "Your lips were not made for facts, dry as dust. They were made for—"

I had intended to say for poetry and romance. I truly had, but, chancing to look at those lips, so red, so daintily curved, so wondrously alluring, I said "kisses," and I proved my assertion. No man could have helped it.

Of course she was very angry. I suppose I would not have had her otherwise, but she did not spring to her feet and run from me.

"I will not apologize for you, you know I want you so, Muriel," I pleaded. She regarded me scornfully.

"As I have told you before, I will not mate with a dreamer. Why do you go into the world and do some mighty work? Everybody—"

"Everybody works but father?" I interrupted politely.

Even with my heart sore I could never help laughing at Muriel and her fine talk of workers—little dainty wisp of a creature, born to be worshipped and cared for, but taking so serious a view of life!

"What would you have me a husband?"

I asked. "As it is, I dream, and my dream makes a book, and the book brings some dollars, and the dollars make several things possible. If I were a housewife it would mean simply dollars, though perhaps fewer of them. So the result is approximately the same, and you have no idea how much pleasanter it is to dream than to carry bricks."

"You are a trifler," she declared. "You ought to write a book which will make the world a better place."

"I am quite sure my books never hurt anybody's morals or manners," I protested gently.

"Only a negative virtue," she responded. "The man I marry must be positive. He must look—"

She hesitated, gazing down at her Lady Washington flowers, which she had taken from her belt.

"How?" I asked, with some interest. "I don't deny that I should be willing that he should look like you," she admitted, a fine color coming into her cheeks. "If only you would do something to make the world better!"

My mood had changed. "I would mind no longer with this child. My plan went to the pocket of letters I counted as among my treasures. They had come from different parts of the country after my first book had been launched. According to these, my mission was not a failure—my book had done a simple one, had made better at least a part of the world, but I would not tell Muriel this. I would try to induce her to do better."

I said gravely, "and that is love biases its own path and cuts its own channels. If it be written that you are for me you will marry me in good time. Love brooks no interference in his realm."

Her cheeks stormed into color as I barked her to her feet.

"Do you see this Lady Washington?" she demanded, holding the pearl-onion before me. "See, I lay it in the hollow of this little big tree. There is a dirt in the hollow, and the pearl-onion may grow. Coming again, I may find that it has taken root. So may I become your wife. The one is as possible as the other."

So Muriel went back to the east with her schemes of philanthropy, and I stayed in my most dream and then to write, but I found that dreaming had grown to be a weary task when the most beautiful one of them all was a forbidden one, for I had lost faith in my own brave avowal of love's omnipotence.

Nearly a year had gone before I visited the Big Tree grove again. I went alone and took a solitary way to the river where I had said goodby to my dream of dreams. A furious storm had wrought some havoc there. Two or three of the lesser trees had fallen, and the swinging bridge had been twisted and broken and thrown upon the bank, while the swollen river raged angrily by it.

I had turned away from my sad retrospect. My eyes caught a glimpse of blue in the distance, and somehow I thought of Muriel's dress and the little blue bird that she had not been kind. But just then I was joined by the guide, who was quite a friend of mine. He had discovered a new plant that was naturally quite enthusiastic over it, so I went into the inner grove to view the discovery. After I had left him I still had a half hour before train time, so I went back to the broken bridge.

Again were my eyes caught by the glimpse of blue, and I saw that a woman was kneeling before one of the little big trees.

"Each to her oak the bashful dryads shrink," I murmured. "If oaks could have dryads, why not redwoods?" I asked myself, and I was startled when her head and looked at me I started toward her.

"Muriel!" I cried, yet still half believing that it was a beautiful vision. But she sprang to her feet, her white face going pink and her tear wet eyes holding a sweetness I had never seen before. She pointed toward the hollow of the tree.

"Look, Armand, the miracle of the pearl-onium!"

There, in the little sitting of dirt, stood the Lady Washington, not very Slightly Mixed.

An Australian traveling in Japan fell into a mixed company in which were an English girl and an American woman. He was highly agreeable to the American at the start, she relates in her account of "A Woman Alone in the Heart of Japan," by remembering that Americans are accustomed to ride over Niagara falls in tubs. Then he switched to the war of the Revolution.

"The whole thing was," he said, "that the whole thing was to send English troops to aid her in a foreign war, so the motherland resolved to subdue her naughty children."

"I guess you have confused it with the war in Africa," said the American. "The Boer war has been so long drawn out you thought it was the same as the American Revolution."

The little English girl saw there was a misunderstanding somewhere.

"There was something about stamps on it," she suggested meekly. "That caused some of the trouble."

"Something about stamps cause a revolution?" demanded the Australian. "Do you want a stampede or money postage stamps? Did the rage for collecting exist in those days?"

But no one enlightened him on this, and he was left to assort history to suit himself.

Remarkable Demand.
The unprecedented prosperity of the country has brought about a remarkable demand for competent services. In fact, it is now impossible to supply the demand. The Bowling Green Business University is getting something like twice as many calls for its graduates as it is able to supply.

Now is an opportune time for young people to enter business life. Free literature, giving full information, can be had by applying to the Business University, Bowling Green, Kentucky.

Still He Wouldn't Reform.
This curious tale of old time spiritism is taken from a stamped and dated "Historical Discourse on Apparitions." "There is now in London an understanding, sober, pious man, one of my best friends," says the author, "a gentleman of considerable rank, who having formerly seemed pious, of late years does often fall into the sin of drunkenness."

One day he was often watched him and tied his hands lest he should do it himself. But his mother declared that he had seen his shoes under the bed taken up and "nothing visible to touch them." The drunken sinner refused in spite of these solemn warnings to abandon his evil ways.

Short Names.
An English clergyman, Mr. Frederick Lee, had a prejudice against a long string of Christian names and held that if such names were proposed the clergyman should alter them at baptism whether the parents were willing or not. It was said of him that he christened all his boys Frederick after himself and all the girls Mary after the Virgin. The author of "The Life of Walter Pater" gives Dr. Lee's method of christening as follows:

"Name this child," he would say in his authoritative voice.

"Archibald Chalmers Constable Ferdinand," perhaps the mother would whisper.

"Frederick," she would hear, to her amazement, and then would follow the formula of baptism.

In the vestry of course there would be objection.

"This child," Dr. Lee would reply, "will have to get his living in the world, and what do you want to handicap him with Archibald Campbell Chalmers and all the rest of them for? Anyhow, it's done now and can't be altered."

Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. It soothes the pain and heals the hurts.

"That'll be quite a swell wedding at your home tonight," said the old friend of the family. "Of course you'll give your daughter away."

"No," replied the girl's father. "I guess I'll only be lending her. I guess you'll be back to live with me."—Philadelphia Press.

Avoiding Direct Testimony.
The wealthy parishioner had with him his pastor, and miles of road by the plunging automobile.

"Hail!" commanded the officer, but no more attention was given to him than to the flitting telephone poles.

Over those poles, however, sped a message, and at the next crossroads a barrier was encountered and also another representative of the law.

"Not only did he break the speed law," complained the constable when the party had assembled in court, "but he also told me to go to the devil."

"You lie!" thundered the wealthy parishioner. "I never use such language."

"We must protect our officers from profanity," intoned the judge. Then, turning to the clerkman, "Perhaps this gentleman, who will not make a mistake, will tell us whether or not the devil was mentioned in this controversy."

"Your honor," pleaded the clerkman, "I and my brethren refer to his satanic majesty so frequently that any additional allusion to him would not impress itself upon me sufficiently to remember the incident."—New York Press.

PERIODS OF PAIN

While no woman is entirely free from periodic suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Irregularities and pain are positive evidence that something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to serious derangement of the feminine organism.

Thousands of women, have found relief from all periodic suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, and is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science.

It cures the condition which causes the most distressing irregular functions should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health and strength by taking Dead Letter Office Mail.

A traveling man received the following telegram from his wife: "Twins arrived tonight. More by mail."

He went at once to the nearest office and sent the following reply: "I leave for home tonight. If more come by mail, send to dead letter office."

More Than They Wanted.
On his trip homeward by trolley a tired business man was annoyed by three middle aged ladies who stood near him. They seemed determined that he should offer one of them his seat.

He screened himself behind his paper and listened to plainly audible remarks about the tone of gallantry. This grated on his nerves, so he arose and, with a profound bow, addressed the three.

"Will the oldest of you ladies honor me by accepting my place?"

Whereupon they became interested in the advertisements over the windows, and the man resumed his seat.—Ladies Home Journal.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1907

$15,000 FROM TOBACCO TRUST.

The following editorial is taken from the Georgetown Times, an old substantial Democratic paper published in Georgetown, Ky.:

"Beckham is making a plea to the country people on the temperance question, but he has never explained how the managers of his campaign sold out the country people, body and soul, to the American Tobacco Co., for $15,000. Beckham lays great stress in his speeches on some things the senate investigating committee did and said, but he is as silent as the tomb about the fact which was brought to the attention of the senate. Will the country people vote for a man who allows his campaign managers to take $15,000 from this great corporation that the farmers are fighting? There is not a farmer in Kentucky but who feels that he is oppressed by this great tobacco corporation, and yet when any one in the Legislature wants legislation in favor of the tobacco grower the Beckham henchmen always passed the word down the line that they must not be hurt, because they put $15,000 in the campaign fund. The only law which ever protected the tobacco grower was the McCoin law, and yet Governor Beckham had his friends to repeal it and say to the tobacco grower that the buyer could steal ten pounds out every hoghead and not pay a cent for it. Truly a great reformer to appeal to the farmers of Kentucky."

We understand that Dr. Foote is pledged to vote for Beckham for Senator. Is this true Doctor? If so, what do the tobacco raisers of this county think about supporting a candidate for Representative who will vote to send to the Senate a man who accepted $15,000 from the tobacco trust and who is thus under obligations to favor the worst enemy of the farmer? Think about these things before you cast your vote.

HOW DOES DR. FOOTE STAND?

The Republican candidate for Representative issued a statement to the public a month ago to the effect that he would not use any money nor whiskey to buy the election, or authorize or permit it to be done for him by others. The people want to know your position on this question, Dr. Foote. You have had three weeks to inform the voters how you stand. They want to know if you are going to permit others to use money or whiskey, or both, to buy votes for you? Let the people have a clear, positive statement from you on this point. Let us have a clean, fair election this November. It is up to you, Dr. Foote.

THAT GAME OF BASE BALL.

Mr. Haswell, who was the clerk of the last Fiscal Court, informs the News that the statement that Judge Moorman adjourned this court to play ball, is incorrect, in-so-far as to its adjournment for that specific purpose. We made the statement upon what we thought to be reliable information, as we saw two or three of the members attending the Institute, some on the streets and the Judge at the ball game, and we took it that our informant knew what he was saying was true. Though the Democrat has misrepresented us frequently, we do not desire to injure its editor, and we gladly make this statement.

If you are a Democrat, and believe the best interests of your State will be served by voting that ticket, do it. It is your right and you should exercise it as a true American citizen. But if your conscience tells you that you can best serve your state, your county, your community, by voting the Republican, Prohibition or Socialist tickets, it is your duty as a good citizen to vote that way. We have no quarrel with any man who casts his own vote as he chooses. What we want and what every fair-minded man wants, is clean voting: free from the influences of the party bosses and his henchmen.

Watch the boss henchmen. They are on the grounds now planning and scheming to carry the election and do the boss' dirty work.

Using money and whiskey in our elections must be cut out.

If you believe in clean elections in the elimination of money and whiskey you should see to it that none is used in your voting precinct by either party.

For every Democrat who votes the Republican ticket the "Boss" says he can take $2.50 and buy a "nigger" in his place. He may buy a "nigger" but never a Negro.

It ought to be, and is a great privilege to vote. No higher mark of good citizenship is given the man who walks into his booth and casts his vote for the party or the man of his choice. We can uncover our head to any man who does it. We say vote and vote your sentiments.

There is no place in this county for the man, or any combination of men, who set themselves up as censors. Free speech, a free press, freedom of conscience, liberties which come down to us from our forefathers, are sacred to every citizen and must not be interfered with.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Out of Sight.
"Out of sight, out of mind." is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles too and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by Severs Drug Co., 23c.

SOCIETY IN CLOVERPORT.

The falling autumn leaves have awakened the listless dreamers and started them a working, a going and a laughing. In fact, the whole social atmosphere seems to be astir; even Cloverport, is very gay. To a dinner, a club meeting or a pay church supper; at least, something of the kind, every afternoon and evening, and the young mothers and their daughters do not stop until the fire is kindled at twilight to relieve the chill of the October evenings. Among the most pleasant affairs of the week were: Mr. and Mrs. James Younger's dinner in honor of Col. Ben Johnson; the meeting of the Girls' club at Miss Grace Plank's home and Mrs. Haynes entertainment in honor of Mrs. Young, of Morganfield, and Mrs. D'Huy, of Evanston, Ill.

MRS. BOWNE ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. Edward Bowne gave a smart and delightful afternoon party Friday. Progressive games were played and five tables were used. One lady progressed because she threaded the most needles and another got her hand-painted tally card punched for naming the most cities. However, Mrs. L. T. Reid carried off the prize. Dainty refreshments were served and a most enjoyable time was had by the guests who were: Misses Georgia White, Margaret and Lizzie Skilman, Ruth Haynes, Francis Smith, Josie Kait, Lucy McCook, Irene and Annie Jarboe, Jennie Warfield, Kate Oglesby, Jane Hambleton, Mesdames L.T. Reid, Wickliffe DeHaven, Frank Payne, John Jarboe, W. H. Bowmer, Fred Perry, Abe Skilman, Eugene Haynes, Byrne Severs, Ed. English.

Mrs. F. N. D'Huy, of Evanston, Ill., and Mrs. Young, of Morganfield, were guests of honor at a forty-two party Saturday at the home of Mrs. Eugene Haynes. Mrs. Haynes was assisted in entertaining by her charming daughter, Miss Ruth Haynes.

There is one young girl in Cloverport who might become famous as a cake baker if she keeps on. She is a tiny child to stand on her tip toes to get things from the pantry shelves, but she can make big cakes that simply melt in your mouth. Any kind from angel's cake to devil's food, the little cook can stir up to suit a king's taste; so if you do not know who she is, it will pay to look her up, especially if you are cake hungry.

LUCKY THIRTEEN.

The Girls' Club which was called week before last by Miss Lela Severs, had its second meeting at the home of the Misses Plank Wednesday and will be entertained this afternoon by Miss Rebecca Willis. The club will be known as "The Lucky Thirteen" this season in accordance with the number of the members who are: Misses Grace, Evca and Edith Plank, Jennie Harris-Rebecca and Martha Willis, Lela Severs, Margaret Moorman, Annie Jarboe, Ray Heyser, Margaret Burn, Edna Jarboe and Louise Babbage.

Mrs. Lucy Temple has returned to Owensboro where she will make her home with her brother, Mr. J. W. Lafoe whose marriage to Miss Annie Chambers, of Lewisport, took place last week. During Mrs. Temple's visit in Cloverport, she was the guest of Judge and Mrs. J. H. Willis, and was extensively entertained by her friends here.

Society is a strange circle and many mysterious things go on therein. It has little schemes like cob webs, so finely woven that they are hardly felt or seen, but they are there just the same. Sometimes the largest ones are broken within a moment. Just the other day a hostess had her table set for eight and at the appointed hour one of the guests walked in with two friends whom he had taken the privilege to invite without giving the hostess any fore word. Even the host got uneasy, but it came out all right; at least the luncheon did. The blue points were re-arranged and the cook made the courses good for ten instead of the invited number. "Just bringing them in" is an old custom, but fashion shuts the door on it now. When plates are laid for eight the caterer means eight and no more.

DELIGHTFUL BOAT PARTY.

Mr. B. L. Daniels took a number of friends to Cannelton, Ind., Sunday in his gasoline launch. His guests were: Messrs. Howard, Conley, Chas. Howard, Tom Faith, Tom Perry, Raymond Pate and Dr. Frank Hook.

The Ladies' Reading Club was entertained by Miss Kate Oglesby last week, and will meet at the home of Mrs. C. W. Moorman tomorrow afternoon.

Beating the Bryans.

By LESTER CORNING.

Copyright, 1907, by C. H. Butcliffe.

"That woman is back again," snapped Mrs. Paulding. Her son smiled. "That" woman, he meant, was none other than Mrs. Bryan, the only person in Glendale who dared challenge Mrs. Paulding's pretensions to social leadership.

"They got in last night," said Fred mildly. "They had three weeks at the shore, two weeks in the mountains and a month in New York. They brought back a lot of things from there."

"And where did you get all this information?" demanded Mrs. Paulding in key tones.

"Nancy," said Fred promptly. "I met her down at the postoffice and walked part of the way home with her."

"I wish you would remember that I do not like to have you speak to that loud person," said Mrs. Paulding fretfully. "Mrs. Beeman had the audacity to ask at the sewing circle the other afternoon if you were engaged to Nancy."

"There doesn't seem to be a chance for such luck," said Fred gloomily as he rose from the table. "Every time I ask her she reminds me how our respective mothers-in-law would love us."

"Every time?" echoed his astonished mother. "May I ask how many times you have lowered your dignity by proposing to that impudent girl?"

"About a hundred," was the easy response. "One of these days I'll catch her off her guard and she'll say 'Yes.'"

"I hope I may never live to see the day," said his mother dolefully.

"I hope you do," he said, with a laugh, as he bent and kissed the tightly compressed lips. "You'd like her, mummy, if you didn't hate her mother so."

Fred slipped out of the room, and his mother could hear the rattle of his laughter as he crossed the broad hall. For a time she sat with compressed lips as she pondered the situation. Until two years before had quipped it over the Glendale set both by virtue of her husband's business and political importance and because of her own skill as an entertainer. Then the new pulp mill had been started at the upper dam, and Beaufort Bryan had brought his family to live in Glendale.

"NANCY AND I WERE MARRIED HALF AN HOUR AGO."

From the first the two women had crossed swords. Mrs. Bryan, who had humbly followed other leaders in the city, now asserted her right to the title in the small town, and by the brilliancy of her entertainments she had very nearly wrested social supremacy from her established rival before Mrs. Paulding had realized what was going on.

Her own entertainments became more ambitious, and for the last year the advantage had lain first with one and then the other. To have Fred fall a victim to Nancy Bryan was the worst blow she had sustained, and had she known that Nancy's mother was as furious as she at the turn of affairs had taken she would have derived small comfort from that fact. In blissful ignorance of Mrs. Bryan's state of mind, she elected to believe it a move of that destined woman.

To add to the discomfort of the situation, she heard during the day that Mrs. Bryan was to celebrate her return by a garden party of unusual pretentiousness.

A number of her city friends were to make up a house party, and there was to be dancing on the lawn to the music of an orchestra famous throughout the state.

In her calmer moments Mrs. Paulding would have waited for revenge, but Fred's admission of his love angered her so that she lost her usual caution and announced a party for the same afternoon and evening. She engaged a brass band for the promenade music and arranged for a troupe of Arabian acrobats to perform on the lawn.

Glendale society was shaken to its foundations, and as each move was communicated to the other friends through the medium of officious friends some new feature was added as an offset until it seemed that nothing short of the engagement of a circus could definitely settle the matter.

It was in this frame of mind that Mrs. Paulding approached her son.

"You know that automobile you wanted?" she began at the breakfast table. "I'll get it for you if you can devise some feature that Mrs. Bryan can't possibly get for her party. That woman has copied every idea I have originated so far."

"Do you give me carte blanche?" he demanded, still aloof.

"Spend as much as you like," she murmured.

"And you won't ask what it is until I spring it?" he stipulated.

"I promise," she said. "I may rely upon you, Fred?"

"For the sensation of the season," he assured, "take heart of grace, mother mine. I am planning to shake Glendale to its very foundations."

Much relieved, Mrs. Paulding hurried to consult to her dearest friends that she would have a sensation that could not be equaled. This in due course was communicated to Mrs. Bryan, who worried much; but, since Mrs. Paulding did not herself know the nature of the surprise, she could not betray Fred's general plan.

The day of the "double header," as Paulding irreverently referred to it, dawned bright and beautiful, and by 2 o'clock the festivities were under way. There were circus performances on both lawns, and honors seemed fairly even. Mrs. Paulding went about with a smile of confidence upon her face and with skillful references to her surprise kept curiosity up to pitch. The afternoon passed without the appearance of the surprise, and the dusk had gathered before Fred disappeared, and was passed that he had gone to engineer the great event. An hour later the Paulding butter song and his mistress, and she vanished into the house.

She found Fred in the library, and with him Mrs. Bryan. "I want to introduce you to the sensation," said Fred, with a laugh, as he led the girl forward. "Nancy, as he was married half an hour ago."

"And this is your surprise?" she gasped.

"Could you have a greater one?" he asked. "Every one knows of the rivalry between you and Mrs. Bryan. If you turn your party into a wedding reception you'll beat Mrs. Bryan to a standstill. You've been bragging about your surprise. You pretend you know it was coming all along, and the laugh is on Mrs. Bryan."

For a moment Mrs. Paulding hesitated. In some ways it was a little pill to swallow; but, as Fred had shown her, it was necessary to make the best of the situation. She stepped forward and took the bright-faced girl in her arms.

"My dear," she said sincerely, "I am very glad to welcome my son's wife to her new home. Let us go out on the lawn. I will introduce you to my friends."

She turned toward the door, but paused as down the street there came the sound of a marching band.

"What is that," she asked—"more of the surprise?"

Paulding nodded his head. "It's the people from the Bryans coming to congratulate the bride!" he exclaimed.

"Mrs. Bryan was with us, but went home to tell his wife and invite the crowd over here. You have swallowed me."

Two Foolish Situations.

A farmer went into a hardware store and while purchasing some tools was asked by the proprietor if he did not want to buy a bicycle.

"A bicycle won't eat its head off," said the farmer, "but you can ride around your farm on it. They're cheap now, and I can let you have one for $15."

"I'd rather put the $35 in a cow," replied the farmer.

"You'd look mighty foolish riding round your farm on a cow," said the dealer, "but I'll let you have one for $15."

"No more foolish than I would miking a bicycle."

A Sure Cure.

He was very sick, and his doctor told him that he had to change his mode of living and prescribed "going to bed early, eating more roast beef, drinking beef tea, a month's rest at some quiet watering place and just one cigar a day." A month later the invalid met the doctor, and the latter complimented him on his improved appearance.

"Yes, doctor," said the patient, "I look better because I am better. I went to bed early, ate more roast beef, spent a month in the country and took great care of myself, but that one cigar a day nearly killed me, for I had never smoked before."

Washington and Teacher Differed.

The teacher was announcing the holiday of Feb. 22 and asking them questions concerning its observance, among others, why the birthday of Washington should be celebrated more than that of any one else. "Why," she added, "more than mine? You may tell me." She said to a little fellow eager to explain.

"Because he never told a lie!"

The After College Girl's Complaint.

A lady was calling on some friends one summer afternoon. The talk buzzed along briskly, fans waved and the daughter of the house kept twitting her mother with her remarks, and making little smothered exclamations of annoyance. Finally, with a sigh, she rose and left the room.

"Your daughter," said the visitor, "seems to be suffering from the heat."

"No," said the hostess. "She is just back home from college, and she is suffering from the family grammar."

SIX COLLEGE CLUBHOUSE.

Joint Building For Organizations of Alumni of New England Institutions.

A nine-story building in New York for college men, the lower third of which will be common to the New York graduates of six New England institutions and the other six-story portion a ninth story, to the graduates of each of the institutions, is the latest idea in clubhouses, says the New York Tribune.

The originator of the plan, Alston Sargent, secretary of the club of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in East Twenty-eighth street, says it has been received with enthusiasm by New York graduates of the six institutions—Amherst, Brown, Dartmouth, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Wesleyan and Williams. The New York men who have attended each of them now have clubs of their own, the average membership of which is about 800. That number makes a good sized club, but not large enough to provide the advantages of the houses of the Harvard, Yale and Princeton graduates.

Five hundred thousand dollars is the amount which it is planned to raise among the members of the six college clubs for the new building. With 200 members in each club, this means that the composite New England organization would start out with a membership of 1,000, and those interested in the plan think that this number could easily be increased to 2,500 or 3,000. The additional members would be drawn from graduates of the institutions named who do not at present belong to the clubs bearing the name of their alma mater, but would do so if the proper facilities for a clubhouse were offered.

The site suggested for the house is in or near College row or Clubhouse alley, at West Forty-fourth street between Fifth and Sixth avenues has come to be known. In the nine-story building considered there would be room enough for billiard and smoking rooms, bowling alley, squash courts, a large dining room, an assembly room and sleeping apartments. To these all members would have access, while a door would be reserved for the preservation of the half dozen college atmospheres. The maintenance of each of the college doors would be left to its frequenters, while the general administration of the building would be looked after by a house committee made up of representatives of each of the component clubs.

If the scheme proves to be a success, it is possible that it may be imitated by graduates of colleges with insufficient numbers to maintain a clubhouse themselves. There may be a New York Pacific Coast College club and a New York State University club and a Middle Western association.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drought are almost forgotten in the prospective Kansas of today, although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold remedy and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by Severs Drug Co., 50-51, Trial bottle free.

Wonders of the Weather.

If it were not for the countless trillions of dust particles that float, separately, invisibly, in the atmosphere there could be no raindrops, snow crystals or hailstones. From a perfectly dustless atmosphere the moisture would descend in ceaseless rain without drops. The dust particles serve as nuclei about which the vapor gathers. The snow crystal is the most beautiful creation of the aerial moisture, and the hailstone is the most extraordinary. The heart of every hailstone is a tiny speck of dust. Such a speck, with a little moisture condensed about it, is the germ from which may be formed a hailstone capable of felling a man or smashing a window. But first it must be caught up by a current of air and carried to the level of the lofty cirrus clouds, five or six or even ten miles high. Then, continually growing by fresh accessions of moisture, it begins its long plunge to the earth, spinning through the clouds and flashing in the sun like a diamond ball shot from a rainbow.

The Educated Flea.

It was at a banquet. A rule had been agreed upon to the effect that every person called upon for a toast must respond with speech, song or story. As a last number on the improvised programme, a retiring sort of chap was called upon to do his part.

"I can't make a speech," he stammered, "but I heard that fleas could be trained to do tricks, and some time ago I tried to train one. Would you care to see him?"

A place was cleared off in the center of the snowy tablecloth, and in the middle the owner set the small pillbox he had taken from his vest pocket.

Knowing Miss Knowlton

By MARSHALL LEONARD.

Copyright, 1907, by William Darcy.

It seemed as Travers that life really began for him when he came to Lester to superintend the building of the electric works, for until then he had been uneventful, and he had not known of Ada Knowlton.

Even now he merely knew of her, for Travers was not a ladies' man. He was too terribly in earnest to share his society, and, though he had been in Lester for nearly two months, he seemed as far from his girl as ever. Every Sunday he went to church and sat where he could watch the choir where Ada sang, the stained glass forming a background for the shapely golden head. The Rev. Josiah Rutherford watched approvingly the expression of rapt interest that was upon Travers' face all through the sermon. He could not notice that the keen blue eyes of the young contractor were upon the choir rather than upon the pulpit, and he felt gratified that he should hold his auditor so well.

So it happened that the Rev. Josiah stopped at the new factory one morning and extended an invitation to Travers to join a church picnic the following week.

"It is almost a family affair," he explained as Jimmie's hand went down into his trousers pocket. "I am not selling tickets. It is purely by invitation and only for the members of the Sunday school, but I thought that perhaps you might like to meet some of the young people and get acquainted."

Jiminy beamed upon the kindly old man as he thought of Ada Knowlton and accepted the invitation with an enthusiasm that caused the minister to wonder at certain comments he had heard regarding the unsociability of the newcomer.

"He is most cordial," he told his wife. "I am sure that he needs only to get acquainted to be a decided addition to our little society. I am sorry that I did not look him up earlier."

Travers echoed the same sentiment as he went about his work. Surely at until it became almost real to him.

But at the last moment there came a complication at the factory, and it was after 11 when Travers finally got away. He lost his way trying to drive out in a lively brough, and when at last he came to the lake lunch was over and the merry-makers had scattered through the woods.

The minister and his wife insisted that he have something to eat, and then motherly Mrs. Rutherford took him in charge and introduced him to every one in sight, but Ada Knowlton was nowhere to be seen.

He made himself agreeable to the others, but his eyes continually sought a sight of the pink dress and golden head that had been the attraction. He had seen them drive past on their way to the lake, and he had carefully noted the dress, but not a glimpse of it did he get until well along in the afternoon.

And there the surface of the lake was dotted with small boats and canoes, and in one of the latter he saw the flash of pink that seemed to communicate its color to his face. Miss Knowlton was alone! And she was paddling in to the landing!

With assumed carelessness, he directed his steps toward the tiny wharf to which the boats were tied. He would be on hand to assist her from the canoe, and perhaps after he had introduced himself there might be a chance for the walk after all.

He had just reached the dock and the frail craft was but twenty yards away when some one called to the navigator, and she turned to respond with a wave of her paddle. As she did so the canoe tipped over and she was spilled into the water.

White with horror, Travers stripped off his coat and his low shoes and dived to her assistance. He was a splendid swimmer, and his heart beat as he thought of the opportunity that had been offered him.

Then something loomed dark above his head. There was a shock, and all became black. It was half an hour later that Travers opened his eyes again and looked up into Ada Knowlton's face beaming anxiously over him. His head throbed with pain, and he was conscious that it was done up in bandages.

"Don't move," said a gentle voice. "You will be all right in a few moments. You were struck on the head by the canoe."

"You were the rescuer instead of the rescued," laughed Dr. Pyron. "Miss Knowlton brought you to shore."

"I am so sorry," she said, bending over. "I was pushing the boat in front of me and did not notice that any one had dived after me. I should have been more careful, but I never supposed that any one would imagine that I was in danger."

"You see," explained the doctor, "the lake is only three or four feet deep, and when we spill out we just wash ashore."

"And I, like an ass, didn't know that," murmured Travers. "I only saw that Miss Knowlton had gone overboard, and I did not know but what she might be in trouble. She seemed to be struggling."

"That was my risk," explained the girl. "It caught in the gullew, and I had to detach it before I could find my footing."

"I guess that's about explanation enough," put in the physician. "I don't want to have you come down with a cold on top of a cut scalp. I guess you'd better drive into town. Miss Knowlton needs to go too. She is soaked. Do you think you can handle your horse?"

"I'm all right now," declared Travers, rising to his feet with the doctor's aid. The crowd melted away, and Dr. Pyron and the minister led him to his buggy. Miss Knowlton climbed in after him, and they started off.

"I suppose," said Travers as they cleared the grove, "you must think that I am lacking in courtesy in not thanking you for saving my life, but I am so used to it."

"You ought to send me for injuring you," she declared. "It was very awkward of me."

"You couldn't know that I was going to swim out to you," he reminded. "I think I should apologize for being in the lake at all."

The girl's laugh rang out at the suggestion. "I'm rather glad that you were there," she said, "though I am sorry that you were injured. I never was rescued before."

"Not performed a rescue," he reminded. "I don't suppose that you can claim a gold medal for life saving."

"I don't want a reward," she insisted. "I am sure that you will be glad to hear that I am all right."

"I am sure that you will be glad to hear that I am all right," she insisted. "I am sure that you will be glad to hear that I am all right."

"I am sure that you will be glad to hear that I am all right," she insisted. "I am sure that you will be glad to hear that I am all right."

ad. "You should be entitled to the reward, if any one was, because you did not realize that a rescue was not dangerous."

"I am sufficiently rewarded in that I know you," he declared. "I have been wanting to meet you for some time."

Miss Knowlton blushed and changed the subject. She could not admit that she, too, had felt an interest, but in her heart she was glad that they knew each other, and when Travers took advantage of his unconventional introduction to call frequently it was not long before she consented to reward him with her hand in the conventional fashion decreed by custom.

"It's such a short courtship," he said, "but I feel that I have known you for years."

"It all depends upon the introduction," said Travers smilingly. "Bless that boat!"

Everybody Has Met Him. The melancholy man looked more than usually downcast—so depressed in fact, that one of his acquaintances was rash enough to ask him what was the matter.

"Oh, everything," replied the melancholy man. "I'm being against you."

"No, not exactly," was the rejoinder, "but I'm considerably worried over what may happen next week."

"Sickness at home?"

"Not yet," replied the melancholy man. "I'm afraid that I'm getting ready for my regular touch of malaria about this time of year."

"Forewarned is forearmed," returned the other with as much cheerfulness as he could summon up under the circumstances. "I see some of your friends is in trouble, and it's creeping on your mind."

"Friends," sniffed the melancholy man. "Much good it would do my friends if I gave them advice. Think of them? Of course I do, but for all the benefit they derive from what I tell them I might as well never give them any thoughts at all."

"Well, what in thunder is it?" asked the other, coming back to first principles.

"Oh, everything," replied the melancholy man as he despondently turned away—New York Press.

GRIZZLY. COWARD, of heroic size. In those lazy muscles lie strength we fear and yet despise; Savage, whose relentless claws are content with acorn and berry. Robber, whose exploits never soared Over the bee or ant's board; While in snide and shade, Shambles, shuffling, plantigrade, He tries courses undimmed, And here, where Nature makes his bed, Lay the rude, half human tread Point to hidden Indian springs, Lost in ferns and fragrant grasses, Hoveled over by timid vines, Where the wood duck lightly passes, Where the wild bee hums his sweet—Epicurean retreats, Fit for the fox, and better than Fearful spoils of dangerous man, Fit for the fox, and better than Fearful spoils of dangerous man, Fit for the fox, and better than Fearful spoils of dangerous man.

THE ASSAULT. WINGED rocket, curving through an amethyst trajectory, Blew up the machine of war. Within the fortress of the bee. Some say the tulip mortar sent. The missile forth; I do not know. I scarcely saw which way it went. Its whisks of flame surprised me so. I heard the sudden hum and boom, And saw the ore of purple light Across the garden's rose gloom. Then something glorious blurred my sight!

The bee forgot to sound alarm, And did not pause their sign to look. A topaz terror took by storm The tower of the hollyhock. Above the rose a halo hung, As if a bomb had been a gun, And round the dahlia's head was swung A blade that looked a diadem.

What more befell I cannot say; By ruby light and emerald gleam My sense was dazed; the garden lay Around me like an opal dream! —Maurice Thompson.

UNITED BRETHREN HOLD CONFERENCE.

Opening Meeting Today At Bollins Church—Twenty Ministers in Attendance.

This morning at 9 o'clock the annual conference of the church of the United Brethren of Kentucky has its first meeting in this county, which will hold forth until Sunday at Bollins chapel of the Louisville District, eight miles from this city.

The delegates commenced to arrive in Cloverport yesterday, fifteen coming on the morning train. Thirty ministers are expected and will be entertained by the people of Patesville and in that neighborhood.

Bishop Carter, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will direct the conference, and will be assisted by the Rev. W. R. Gentry, presiding elder, and the Rev. Henry Craig, pastor of the Bollins church.

The conference extends a cordial invitation to people of Cloverport to attend the sessions of the conference.

Will Teach in Oklahoma. Misses Lena and Carrie Hays, of West View, left Monday for Temple, Oklahoma, where they will teach school. They are intelligent, as well as being very attractive young women which assures them success in their new field.

When You Are Bilious. The only salvation for the person with a torpid liver, according to Wistar to Eat, is through a changed system of dietetics, combined with exercise in the outdoor air, constant use of food-breathing. The person with a bad liver should habitually practice deep and long breathing, filling the lungs at each inhalation. The curative diet must consist principally of nerve or brain food, including fish and a reasonable amount of beef, with generous quantities of cereal foods and the fruits that are rich in acids. In warm weather it is best to abstain from milk altogether. Butter and vegetable fats, baked potatoes, Graham or whole wheat bread, soft boiled eggs, all constitute a safe and nourishing diet.

In the new disease known as "tennis elbow" there is usually local tenderness or pressure, with acute pain on extending the arm. There is seldom any swelling. The trouble is thought to be due to tearing of the muscular fiber, and it is very persistent, often recurring even after long rest.

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

THERE are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon.

But by far the greater number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

No surgeon in the world has relieved so many women from the different phases of ailments peculiar to woman as Dr. Hartman through the use of Peruna.

He receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womanhood.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr. Hartman cures annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the doctor at all.

Not one in a thousand of these fortunate women report their success. Of those who do write testimonials, only a very small per cent. are ever used in public print.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will cure every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial. Her chances of relief are so many that any woman would be doing herself an injustice to neglect such an opportunity of relief.

Mrs. Emma E. Gildner, 720 Santa Fe Ave., Denver, Col., Financial Secretary Germanis Order der Harzger, writes: "Peruna has been a great blessing to me. I suffered agonies with severe headache and a weak back and could hardly drag myself around."

"A friend who was visiting me was taking Peruna for the same trouble and induced me to try it. I soon found that I was being helped and in less than three weeks I felt like a different woman and in four months I was well. Peruna certainly gave me strength."

"I consider it an ideal woman's remedy."

I suffered a great deal and was glad to try Peruna when it was recommended to me so highly. I found it very beneficial. In a short time the pains greatly decreased and in two months I was completely restored.

"DON'T MOVE," SAID A GENTLE VOICE, the picnic he should meet Miss Knowlton, and meeting Miss Knowlton had almost become an obsession with him. He clung over the stagings and platforms with a light heart as he imagined the manner in which they should meet. He rather fancied an introduction under the trees. He would advance with bare head and bow low over her hand. Then she would give him one of those sunny smiles that at most seemed to be her habitual expression, and they would go walking together in the leafy shade.
